Use of climatological data

Fedor will give an overview of methods used to analyze climatological data. Using the sea-level as an example he shows how to create indicators from a dataset and how much variance can be explained.

- Sea level example
- Confounding variables
- Linear models